

“Put Down the Remote and No One Gets Hurt”

Good for all levels, all level trainers as well as pet owners.

One of the problems that most trainers and owners encounter are dogs pulling on leash. Some dogs make it an art form. Many times those dogs have been wrongly labeled “dominant,” “stubborn,” “stupid” and worse. Many "tools of torture" have been invented (and are continuing to be invented) to try to rectify the problem; prong collars, choke collars, head halters, front hook harnesses, hobbles and more.

What many fail to realize is that all of these “tools of torture” activate the dogs natural opposition reflex, thus creating a dog that has no choice but to pull.

This 1/2 day seminar will show you how to train your student's dog or your own dog to walk nicely on a leash without any other tools than a relationship, some food, toys and play. I also throw heeling in for free <g>
